

Expressing and Sharing Our Advent Vision

Sharing our vision, hopes, and dreams with others can be a powerful part of realizing them. We may also find that listening to other people's vision births inspiration and creative ideas in us. On Sunday, January 7th, we will gather to share our personal vision for 2018. If you want simply to talk about your vision or what you have discovered about yourself during the tune-up process, that's great. If you'd like to get creative, here are some suggestions to get you started.

Choose a quote or Bible passage that expresses your dreams for your future. Talk about why you chose this particular quote.

Based on what you most value, write a series of sentences beginning with the words "I am" or "I will be." Read your list to the group.

Choose a single word or symbol which perfectly describes what you'd like to experience in 2018. Talk about why you chose this word or symbol.

Share one or more surprising insights you received during Advent.

Talk about something you intend to change in 2018.

Construct a vision board for 2018. Examples will be provided.

Share a photo, picture, icon, or physical object which especially represents your hopes for the future.

Write a poem, song, joke, short story, or essay which communicates your vision for 2018. Or express your vision using paint, dance, or sculpture.
